2018 First Year Scholarship Application

Essay

Frederick B. Abramson was a distinguished member of the Washington D.C. legal community. He grew up in Harlem, earned a scholarship to a private high school and to Yale University, and graduated from the University of Chicago Law School.

Fred was enormously successful professionally, but he never forgot his roots or how crucial education was to his success. During his life, he was a mentor and role model to many – particularly women and people of color pursuing their educational and professional goals.

In 1991, Fred passed away and several of his friends and colleagues formed the Frederick B. Abramson Memorial Foundation, now the Abramson Scholarship Foundation, in his memory. Their goal was to continue Fred's work by supporting young men and women who are active in their communities as they pursue higher education and their professional goals. The Foundation's mission is to give back to the community by investing in its human capital -- young people like you. To learn more, visit the Abramson Scholarship Foundation website: www.abramsonfoundation.org.
